

WORLD-LEADING THINK TANK ON INTERNATIONAL GOVERNANCE

Founded in 2001, The Centre for International Governance Innovation (CIGI) is an independent, non-partisan think tank on international governance challenges. Led by experienced practitioners and distinguished academics, CIGI aims to anticipate emerging trends in international governance and to strengthen multilateral responses to the world's most pressing problems. CIGI advances policy ideas and debate by conducting studies, forming networks and convening scholars, practitioners and policy makers.

By operating an active program of publications, events, conferences and workshops, CIGI builds capacity to effect change in international public policy. CIGI is advised by an International Advisory Board. The organization is housed in the historic former Seagram Museum building in Waterloo, Ontario, Canada. It was founded by Research In Motion (RIM) co-CEO and philanthropist Jim Balsillie, who also serves as CIGI's chair. CIGI is funded by private and public donations. It gratefully acknowledges the support of the Government of Canada and the Government of Ontario.

VISION

CIGI strives to be the world's leading think tank on international governance, with recognized impact on significant global problems.

MISSION

CIGI will build bridges from knowledge to power, conducting world-leading research and analysis, and influencing policy makers to innovate.

BELIEFS

CIGI believes that better international governance can improve the lives of people everywhere, by increasing prosperity, ensuring global sustainability, addressing inequality and safeguarding human rights and promoting a more secure world.

AUGUST 11, 2011

CIGI'S POLICY RESEARCH OCCURS IN FOUR AREAS

GLOBAL ECONOMY

Addressing the need for sustainable and balanced economic growth, the Global Economy program is a central area of CIGI expertise. Its importance was heightened by the global financial crisis of 2009, which gave impetus to formation of the G20 leaders' summits — a development for which CIGI experts had advocated.

ENVIRONMENT AND ENERGY

Planet Earth faces severe and growing stresses as a result of human development and consumption. The Environment and Energy program at CIGI focuses on governance issues related to climate change, geo-engineering and alternative energy. Ideas arising from CIGI's fall 2010 conference, Climate of Action, are helping to define the program.

GLOBAL DEVELOPMENT

This program of CIGI research and policy analysis explores issues such as aid, health, education and equality from an international governance perspective. Projects include the Africa Initiative, a five-year undertaking with Makerere University examining policies in health, migration and the crosscutting issue of climate change.

GLOBAL SECURITY

Since humans first began to deploy weaponry in inter-tribal warfare, our greatest danger has been, collectively, from ourselves — and at no time has the risk been greater than in the modern age, with its weapons of mass destruction. CIGI's Global Security program focuses on a range of issues in peace, conflict, security and building states.

ADVANCING POLICY IDEAS AND DEBATE

The Centre for International Governance Innovation (CIGI) produces policy-oriented publications — books, conference and special reports, paper series, commentaries and policy briefs — written by CIGI's distinguished academics, experienced practitioners and researchers.

Through its publications program, CIGI aims to inform decision makers, foster dialogue and debate on policy-relevant ideas and strengthen multilateral responses to the most significant international governance issues.

With a solid foundation of comprehensive research and rich international experience, CIGI's mission is to build bridges from knowledge to power, by being the leading global resource on international governance informing policy makers, scholars, practitioners and the interested public.

NEW FACILITY TO OPEN IN 2011

The CIGI Campus, located in Waterloo, Ontario, is a $50-million construction project. It will create a hub of Canadian-based study and research in international affairs.

The campus will be home to institutions that are partnerships between The Centre for International Governance Innovation (CIGI) and other institutions. An incubator of ideas will result from the physical proximity of a global think tank and related schools and research centres.

The campus includes the Balsillie School of International Affairs, established in 2007. The school is a partnership among the University of Waterloo, Wilfrid Laurier University and CIGI. Other elements may include a proposed masters program in international law and other academic and research institutions.

This project received federal and provincial funding totaling $50 million through the Knowledge Infrastructure Program and Ontario's 2009 budget.

The land for the CIGI Campus was generously donated to CIGI under a 99-year lease — a contribution valued at $5 million.

BALSILLIE SCHOOL OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The Balsillie School of International Affairs is a collaborative partnership among CIGI, Wilfrid Laurier University and the University of Waterloo, and represents the largest initiative in the social sciences in Canadian history. With over 30 affiliated faculty, including the CIGI Chairs, the Balsillie School has assembled several experts in a variety of disciplines that contribute to the analysis of the challenges of governance in an increasingly complex global environment. Emphasizing small class size and individual contact with faculty, the programs admit eight doctoral students and 30 master's-level students each year.

PHD IN GLOBAL GOVERNANCE

The PhD in Global Governance (offered jointly by Wilfrid Laurier University and the University of Waterloo) is a unique opportunity for interdisciplinary examination of power and authority in the global arena. Graduate students in the program examine the variety of actors, institutions, ideas, rules, and processes that contribute to the management of global society. In addition to international organizations and inter-state relations, the study of global governance examines the various non-state actors as well as the realities of contemporary life that contribute to the establishment and functioning of global rules, norms and institutions. The Global Governance PhD program interrogates the concepts, tools, and assumptions that have served scholars in the past and assesses new approaches for addressing contemporary and future challenges.

MA IN GLOBAL GOVERNANCE

The MA in Global Governance (offered by the University of Waterloo) goes beyond the rigidities and formalities of established academic boundaries by drawing on a variety of disciplines, including economics, politics, history, and environmental studies. Designed to be completed in sixteen months, the program typically consists of two terms of course work; a third term as an intern working on global governance issues in the public or private sector, a research institute or NGO; followed by a fourth term in which student complete a Major Research Paper (MRP) on a specific research topic of their choosing relating to the study of global governance.

MASTER'S IN INTERNATIONAL PUBLIC POLICY

An intensive, one year, interdisciplinary master's program, the Master's in International Public Policy (MIPP, offered by Wilfrid Laurier University) provides graduate training for individuals looking to pursue or enhance careers in international or global policy development, implementation and evaluation. MIPP students complete three terms of course work, each of which builds a specific skill set; skills in public sector economics, policy analysis and research tools.
