 - Reviewed in Human Security Journal/Revue de la sécurité humaine: The Journal of the Center for Peace Security, 1: April 2006; Cooperation and Conflict, 40: 3, (2005): 305-342.
 - Journal of Peace Research (JPR), 22:3 (May 2005): “This important and interesting book...seeks to identify the theoretical and practical utility of a concept that is widely acknowledged as important, but often criticized as excessively broad.”
 6. Herding Cats: Multiparty Mediation in a Complex World. (With Chester A. Crocker and Pamela R. Aall.) Washington, D.C.: United States Institute of Peace Press, November 1999. 756 pp.

Reviewed in International Affairs, Parameters, Choice, Conflict Prevention Newsletter.

 - USAID Humanitarian Times named it one of the top 10 books published in 2000.
 - International Affairs (Fall 2000): “This book's commitment to theory building and testing, its explicit emphasis on the interplay between concepts and practice, and its inventory of findings, ensure that the epithet seminal is for once quite justified.”
 7. Nurturing Peace: Why Peace Settlements Succeed or Fail. Washington, D.C.: United States Institute of Peace Press, 1996. 278 pp.

Reviewed in Survival, Ethics and International Affairs, Choice, Mershon International Studies Review.

 - The introduction to Stephen John Stedman, Donald Rothchild, and Elizabeth Cousens, eds., Ending Civil Wars: The Implementation of Peace Agreements (Boulder, Colo.: Lynne Rienner Publishers for the International Peace Academy and Center for International Security and Cooperation, Stanford University, 2003) called it “the first book-length treatment of why some peace agreements fail and others succeed...a pioneering effort to call attention to a major under-researched problem [and]...to develop theory by suggesting important relationships that needed further investigation.”
 - Survival (winter 1997-98) called the book “an antidote to the current fix-late-and-run-fast approach which dominates so-called great power’ thinking in this era of conflict. Anyone in the peacemaking business should...read it.”
 8. Multilateral Negotiations: Lessons From Arms Control, Trade, and the Environment. Baltimore and London: The Johns Hopkins University Press, 1995 and 1999. (Principal author. With a contribution by Michael Hart.) 421 pp.

- Reviewed in American Political Science Review, Political Science Quarterly, Choice, International Journal.
- The American Political Science Review, 90, 2 (1996) said that the "work is a major contribution to understanding an important diplomatic activity and to opening up a new field of analysis...[and] a major step in putting multilateral negotiation on the map and in the curriculum as a subject to be taught and analyzed."
9. Unguided Missiles: How America Buys its Weapons. New York: W.W. Norton & Company, 1989. 370 pp.
Reviewed in Nature, Foreign Affairs, Millennium: Journal of International Studies, International Affairs, Publishers Weekly, Kirkus Reviews, Choice, The San Francisco Chronicle, Military Review, Booklist, The Guardian, The Guardian Weekly, New York Newsday, Library Journal.
 - Publishers Weekly (February 17, 1989) said: "This very useful book...brings into clear relief the complex relationship between military procurement and the forces of technology, service parochialism, the arms race, military strategy and arms control."
 - Nature (April 20, 1989): "By combining the rogue thesis with game theory and economic analysis, Hampson thus provides useful insights into how the system works."
 - Kirkus Reviews (March 1, 1989): "A savvy, damning critique of the predictable, inevitable, and wasteful ways in which the US stocks its defensive/offensive arsenal."
 10. Forming Economic Policy: The Case of Energy in Canada and Mexico. New York: St. Martin's Press, 1986. 161 pp.
Reviewed in International Affairs, Journal of Economic Literature, American Political Science Review, Canadian Journal of Development Studies.
 - International Affairs (Fall 1987): "[A] crisp and clearly written account of the energy policies of Canada and Mexico during the 1970s, and of the resolution of major crises which arose out of those policies towards the end of the decade."
